Presented By Barbara Meens Thistle, Vice-President Human Resources

If this item was previously presented to the Board, please provide a brief description of any major changes since that time.	This item was discussed at the November 2018 Executive Committee of the Board of Governors. The Committee requested the Vice-President Human Resources to solicit feedback from other U15 Universities, SFU, and UVic on their practices for VP, AVP and Dean searches.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Executive Committee of the Board has asked the Administration to gather information from other U15 institutions and larger BC universities regarding their practices of closed versus open searches for Deans, AVPs and Vice-President roles.

The Vice-President Human Resources reached out to three large search firms for input on best practices across Canada in regards to university searches. She also reached out to her HR colleagues at the U15 institutions, UVic and SFU to understand their current search practices and policies. In addition, a legal opinion was requested from the Office of the University Counsel and Roper Greyell on any privacy concerns to be considered.

In June 2018, in response to issues raised by the Executive Committee regarding recommendations by the President of the top candidate for Vice-President searches, the Administration agreed to supply a comparison matrix of the top three candidates for each search process. While the Committee expressed satisfaction with receiving the comparison matrix, specific Governors have now asked for the names of the top three candidates for VP searches and even more openness of the search processes of Dean, AVP and VP roles beyond the hybrid approach that is already in place at UBC under Policy 18, 21, and 34.

FUNCTIONAL DEFINITIONS

For this discussion, the “open” search process occurs when candidates are exposed to a wider audience beyond the Search Committee before a final selection decision is made. In its purest sense it means the candidate’s name is made public and the candidate may be asked to participate in a public presentation/forum as a part of their assessment for the role.

A “closed” search process refers to the more limited exposure of a candidate to a smaller decision-making body (e.g. the Search Committee). A key benefit of a closed process has to do with candidate attraction. Simply stated, high potential, qualified candidates often do not declare themselves as candidates until they are confident the process will preserve their anonymity. This fact is significant as candidates are senior people who are generally working in high profile roles elsewhere.

A “hybrid” search is one wherein the finalist candidate or a very small number of finalist candidates’ identities are made known to a larger group than just the Search Committee, but under controlled confidential conditions. Thus, this option seeks a happy medium between the open and closed search processes. There may be requests for confidential, public presentations and forums to ask candidates questions, but candidates’ names are not publicly circulated on the internet.

BEST PRACTICES

In the academic side of the house across our experience in Canada, there is an infrequent use of non-confidential searches at senior levels of universities, with the most senior level searches at the Presidential level only very infrequently being “open”. Most were “closed or hybrid” (search committee). On the non-academic side of the house, searches were also most often “closed or hybrid” (others that see the top 3 candidates may be peers, direct reports, and of course the search committee members).

Search Firms contacted noted anecdotally that in Canada in the academic side of the house, open searches are quite common at the decanal level and are less common as one moves up in the academic hierarchy and rarely seen at the administrative senior leadership level. They are much less common, for example, at the Provost/ VPA level and are very infrequent at the Presidential level. Senior level non-academic roles (e.g. VP HR, VP Finance) are generally much less likely to be “open” searches as often these individuals are still employed in significant roles in significant organizations outside of the university and would not want their employers to know they are considering another opportunity.

Several U15 universities as well as UVic and SFU were contacted to participate in a survey about their practices regarding open, closed and hybrid searches. The survey is still open however as of the date of this report, the following universities have responded:

1. University of Manitoba
2. University of Alberta
3. Western University
4. Laval University
5. University of Victoria
6. Simon Fraser University
7. McGill University
8. Queens University
9. McMaster University
10. University of Calgary

Broadly speaking, when there are open searches at universities, firms have noticed they are often the result of longstanding policy statements between the university and groups such as the Faculty Association. These agreements constitute a reflection of a mutually agreed manifestation of the academic “culture” of the university and the movement and progression toward senior academic roles.

As a rule, searches are closed for VP roles and hybrid for decanal and AVP roles but some universities will hold public fora or presentations for the final candidate or candidates (but usually not more than two candidates). There is an example of situation that happened recently at the University of Moncton where someone on the Presidential Search Committee leaked the ten names on the long short list to the CBC, which went ahead and published the list. This led to the withdrawal of some high-profile candidates and a decision by the Board of Governors to disband the committee and to postpone a new search. An investigation into the leak is on-going and could lead to criminal prosecution.

The advice of the Search Advisory Committee to the ultimate decision-making person or body (e.g. President or Board of Governors in the case of a Presidential search) is seen to be fundamental as a best practice.

A summary of the responses to the survey is outlined in Tables 1, 2 and 3 below:

CONFIDENTIALITY

Search firms take careful note of any sensitivities raised by candidates. They take confidentiality seriously for both our sources and candidates – not least internal candidates. It is the bedrock of trust on which a successful search is built, and essential both ethically and practically. If they approach people, the candidates have a right to expect that approach and their expression of interest will remain confidential, and if they cannot be sure that confidentiality will be maintained, they will – rightly – be unwilling to engage with the search firm or the employer in future.

Candidates will not be forthcoming at all until they have confidence in the integrity of the process, of the Committee, and of the search consultants. Trust needs to be established, and this is vital for senior level search to proceed. While candidates’ reluctance diminishes as the number of competing candidates narrow, it does not disappear altogether. If a candidate knows she or he is one of five contenders, there is little reason for them to welcome broader exposure and risk.

Candidates will also be concerned if they do not get the role that, it may affect their reputation in them applying for other roles if it is publically known they were not successful. This is especially true when they are applying for a move from a position at the same level.

Recruiters in recent years have had to work increasingly hard (for a variety of reasons) to attract strong candidates - and so does the university. Thus the importance of confidentiality cannot be understated. Indeed, this is a key reason search firms ask Search Committee members to sign a confidentiality document at the start of a search, and is why search firms engage in a discussion about what confidentiality look like with the Committee at the start and at the end of each Committee meeting.

BENEFITS OF SEARCH ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Regardless of the process used, whether open, closed, or hybrid, it is important to recognize that the Search Advisory Committee when selected appropriately is, and will remain the single most knowledgeable resource regarding the capabilities of all candidates. At UBC, under Policy 18, 21 and 34, Search Advisory Committees are well representative of key stakeholders including: President, Vice-President representatives, Senate representatives, Board of Governors representatives, Student representatives, Faculty Representation, direct reports to the Senior Leadership role, Deans, etc. The number of representatives of each stakeholder group are clearly laid out by position in each policy.

At the end of the search process, the Committee itself will be in the best position to assess the information gained from all sources including interviews, submissions, presentations, preliminary references of top 3 candidates, consultation feedback, etc. Typically, only the hiring leader (e.g. President) sees any psychometric testing and reference check results of the final candidate.

CANDIDATE INSIGHTS

One firm conducted a survey about three years ago via a series of conversations with senior university personnel (mostly Presidents and Vice-Presidents) across Canada. The intent was to gather the opinions of these leaders regarding "open" and "closed searches" specifically for Presidential searches. The survey was conducted with assurances the firm would maintain the confidentiality of the respondents, and was anecdotal in design (not controlled for reliability and validity). The sample size was however reasonably large, including over 50 executives in total.

The vast majority of respondents believed that Presidential searches in universities ought to be "closed". The primary reason given for this was that good candidates would not apply if the search was "open" Indeed several respondents suggested the vast majority of "good" candidates would not apply under these conditions.

Several interviewees in the survey noted that senior people are busy, and generally happy in their current roles. This is evidenced by the fact that when an ad is placed, recruiters do not get a flood of responses from good candidates.

REFERENCING PRACTICES

Reference checking is vital part of gaining insights into candidates over the course of their career, and in respect to broader aspects about the candidate as well. It is usually held back initially until there is a reasonable sense by the selection body about who the front runners are.

Asking for references too soon exposes a candidate needlessly and may even cause damage to the candidate/referee relationship.

A good starting point is for a determined number of finalists in a process who are considered the strongest contenders to offer up trusted references from the categories of: supervisor, colleague or peer, and subordinate groups. It is not uncommon for the Committee to ask for further referees and for specific referees that the candidate has not named initially. Some early referencing may be done with the knowledge and approval of the candidate.

As the search nears the final stages, detailed referencing follows for the single preferred finalist, and sometimes for a close contender or two. The exact number of candidates to be referenced and the number of referees is uniquely a function of the considered best interests for the committee and in respect for the candidates.

Most often it is the search firm that conducts the referencing. Some firms offer the Chair of the search committee to sit in on reference calls with them, and this is quite effective if the Committee Chair is the Board Chair and the referee is the Board Chair or Board member of the candidate's organization.

Occasionally Board members will want to speak directly to referees the candidate has listed. This is not a good practice to happen without the search firm joining in on the call to manage any potential issues or disclosures, and only with the agreement of the Search Committee Chair and of course the candidate.

Search firms do not think Board members should simply call individuals they "know" to give them feedback on a candidate as this really can corrupt the integrity of the process and perhaps cause worse damage or concerns. At a minimum, a discussion is needed about any proposed outside activities beyond those mentioned with the Search Committee Chair, and the search firm.

As it relates to reference checking, search firms are not supportive of unstructured reference checking, as this would also compromise the confidentiality of candidates. If different people are speaking to referees, there is no uniformity of approach and the door will be open to misinformation and or rumour mongering. Besides, in most if not all provinces, seeking input on someone for employment purposes without the person's authorization is against privacy laws. Sometimes a candidate will give the search firm a blanket authorization to speak to anyone they wish to approach, but that is rare.

As a general best practices, candidates should be asked for names of specific references and be allowed to share with those references the name of individuals who will contact them and be provided with information about the role the candidate is being considered.

PRIVACY

Under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FIPPA), information (e.g. comparison matrix) that identifies job applicants constitutes "employment history", which is a category of personal information of an especially sensitive kind. The disclosure of employment history is deemed to be an unreasonable invasion of the individual's personal privacy. Without the consent of the individual, such information may only be shared inside UBC on a "need to know" basis, and may only be disclosed outside the institution in extraordinary circumstances, such as law enforcement investigations. Consent, under FIPPA, cannot be implied; it must be in writing and must contain all of the following elements:

- (1) what information will be disclosed;
- (2) to whom the personal information may be disclosed;
- (3) the duration of disclosure;
- (4) the purpose of the disclosure; and
- (5) If applicable, the jurisdictions outside Canada where the data may be disclosed.

In other words, it is not sufficient to rely on an assumed understanding of the expectations of the candidates with respect to their privacy; it is necessary to secure their unambiguous written consent to disclose their personal information. It is best practice to get the individual to sign or “click through” the consent to provide evidence that the individual has seen it and has agreed to it. Given the sensitivity of the “employment history” we are discussing here, I would strongly advise you to secure signed consent from the candidates, using language that contains all of the elements listed above.

Violating the above provisions of FIPPA could result in a complaint to the Information and Privacy Commissioner, which could lead to a public finding that UBC had violated the privacy of the individual. If we breached a candidate’s privacy, they might also commence a lawsuit under the BC Privacy Act, which creates a statutory tort of invasion of privacy. Damage awards for breaches of the Privacy Act have been increasing in recent years. There is little to no doubt that the disclosure of the identity of a confidential job applicant, without their consent, could result in a significant damage award in egregious circumstances.

In summary, we are legally entitled to disclose the identities of job candidates only with securing their consent, as outlined above. Whether this is advisable from a practical perspective is another question. The obvious risk here is that a public recruitment process will dissuade currently employed candidates from throwing their hats in the ring, for fear of harming their relationships with their current or future employers. We will need to balance that risk against any benefits that a public recruitment process might have.

- 2.5 The Chair of the Advisory Committee for the selection of an Academic Associate Vice-President must consult with the President before confirming the composition of the Advisory Committee.
- 2.6 Student Member Elections: For student members, the nominations and the elections are to be conducted in accordance with procedures satisfactory to the Registrar. The Registrar may authorize a student society to conduct the nominations and/or elections processes on his or her behalf.
- 2.7 Senate Selections: For a Senate selection, the selection process is to be conducted in accordance with procedures satisfactory to the relevant Senate. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the Senate may authorize a committee (such as, for example, the Nominating Committee) to conduct the process or to simply make the selections.

3. Replacement of Advisory Committee Members

- 3.1 Vacancy or Inability to Participate: If a member of an Advisory Committee becomes unwilling or unable to serve as a member of the Advisory Committee before it has completed its work, the Chair, in consultation with the President, may appoint a replacement member. While the replacement member may be any person whose participation is expected to contribute significantly to the Advisory Committee's activities, the usual practice is for the replacement member to be from the same stakeholder group as the person being replaced.
- 3.2 Student Status: If a student member of an Advisory Committee ceases to be a student at the University but remains willing and able to continue to serve as a member of the Advisory Committee, the Chair, in consultation with the President, may permit the student to continue to serve or may appoint a replacement student member. Any such replacement student must meet the same eligibility requirements as the student who is being replaced. For example, if the student being replaced is a graduate student selected from the graduate students associated with a specific campus, the replacement student will be appointed from the graduate students associated with that campus.
- 3.3 If a replacement member is not appointed, the Advisory Committee may complete its work notwithstanding the vacancy.

4. Procedure for Advisory Committee

- 4.1 The Chair of the Advisory Committee will be responsible for calling meetings.
- 4.2 Meetings may be held face-to-face, via telephone conference, video conference or any means determined by the Chair of the Advisory Committee.
- 4.3 The quorum required to transact business at meetings will be a majority of the members of the Advisory Committee unless otherwise determined by the Chair.

5. Customary Practices: In making appointments to an Advisory Committee, including replacement appointments under Article 3 of these Procedures, the President will endeavour to provide for a diverse and balanced Advisory Committee.

6. Term and Remuneration

- 6.1 The form and amount of remuneration of Designated Senior Academic Administrators must be established and documented in writing at or before the effective date of the appointment.
- 6.2 Designated Senior Academic Administrators may be appointed for terms of up to five years.

7. Responsible Executive

- 7.1 Appointment: The individual responsible for Policy #18 and these associated Procedures is the President.
- 7.2 Sub-Delegation: The Responsible Executive is not limited in sub-delegation of the duties hereunder but remains responsible for oversight.

8. Administrative Leaves

- 8.1 As part of the terms of an appointment, a Designated Senior Academic Administrator may be granted an administrative leave, to be taken at the conclusion of the appointment, provided, however that any such grant of administrative leave as well as any remuneration and/or benefits to be received by the Designated Senior Academic Administrator during any such administrative leave must be documented in writing at or before the effective date of the appointment.
- 8.2 Recognizing that administrative leave is intended to provide for a reasonable period of time for senior administrators who are returning to the academic ranks to focus on their scholarly and professional activities and to re-integrate with their disciplines before they resume their regular duties as faculty members, administrative leave will only be granted to the Designated Senior Academic Administrator if he or she holds a tenured appointment and actually returns to active duty as a faculty member for at least one year immediately after the period of the administrative leave.
- 8.3 If an administrative leave is granted, time served as a Designated Senior Academic Administrator and time taken on administrative leave will not be included in the years of service for the purpose of calculating study leave.
- 8.4 During the period of administrative leave, the faculty member continues to be a full-time employee of the University, and is required to comply with the University's policies and procedures.
- 8.5 Any arrangements with respect to administrative leave for a Designated Senior Academic Administrator that were established and documented in writing prior to May 1, 2008 will not be affected by these Procedures.
- 8.6 Any deviations from the Articles of these Procedures dealing with administrative leave may only be made with the written approval of the President.

3. Selection of Advisory Committee Members

- 3.1 Senate Selections: For a Senate selection, the selection process is to be conducted in accordance with procedures satisfactory to the relevant Senate. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the Senate may authorize a committee (such as, for example, the Nominating Committee) to conduct the process or to simply make the selection.
- 3.2 Student Selections: To be eligible for selection as a student Advisory Committee member, a person must be presently enrolled at the University in a credit course or be designated by resolution of a UBC Senate as a student. For a UBC Vancouver student selection, the Council of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia Vancouver shall select a student in accordance with procedures satisfactory to it. For a UBC Okanagan student selection, the Board of Directors of the Student Union of UBC Okanagan shall select a student in accordance with procedures satisfactory to it.
- 3.3 In making appointments to an Advisory Committee, including replacement appointments under Article 4 of these Procedures, the Chair will endeavour to provide for a diverse and balanced Advisory Committee and to reflect a balance of representation between the Okanagan and Vancouver campuses.

4. Replacement of Advisory Committee Members

- 4.1 Vacancy or Inability to Participate: If a member of an Advisory Committee becomes unwilling or unable to serve as a member of the Advisory Committee before it has completed its work, the Chair may appoint a replacement member. While the replacement member may be any person whose participation is expected to contribute significantly to the Advisory Committee's activities, the usual practice is for the replacement member to be from the same stakeholder group as the person being replaced.
- 4.2 Student Status: If a student member of an Advisory Committee ceases to be a student at the University but remains willing and able to continue to serve as a member of the Advisory Committee, the Chair may permit the person to continue to serve or may appoint a replacement student member. Any such replacement student must meet the same eligibility requirements as the student who is being replaced. For example, if the student being replaced is a student selected from the students registered in a degree or diploma program at a specific campus, the replacement student will be appointed from the students registered in a degree or diploma program at that campus.
- 4.3 If a replacement member is not appointed, the Advisory Committee may complete its work notwithstanding the vacancy.

5. Procedure for Advisory Committee

- 5.1 The Chair of the Advisory Committee will be responsible for calling meetings.
- 5.2 Meetings may be held face-to-face, via telephone conference, video conference or by any means determined by the Chair of the Advisory Committee.

- 5.3 The quorum required to transact business at meetings will be a majority of the members of the Advisory Committee unless otherwise determined by the Chair.

6. Term and Remuneration

- 6.1 The form and amount of remuneration of an Administrative Vice-President must be established and documented in writing at or before the effective date of the appointment.
- 6.2 An Administrative Vice-President may be appointed for a term up to five years. An extension of an appointment of an Administrative Vice-President is normally for a term of up to five years.
- 6.3 Normally, an Administrative Vice-President will not serve more than 10 consecutive years. Where compelling reasons exist to do so, the President may recommend the extension of an appointment beyond 10 years, provided that the President's recommendation delineates those compelling reasons.
- 6.4 If the form or amount of remuneration of an Administrative Vice-President is to be changed upon commencement of an extension, such change must be established and documented in writing at or before the effective date of the extension.
